

For more than 80 years, Vista Center has been providing support and services to people of all ages in four Northern California counties - teaching how to live in a sighted world, when your eyesight is diminishing. Learning new skills to commute, read, cook, and to use technology are critical services provided - often at no charge to clients.

Defining life goals, creating a loving family, challenging your intellect, exercising, and contributing to the greater good, are things everyone needs to maintain an emotional balance and overall mental health.

The social and emotional support needed by people with vision impairment is essential - Vista Center strengthens clients' emotional journey with compassion, education, encouragement, and the fundamental belief that people with vision impairment can live the life they desire, with independence, joy, and confidence.

Our mission is to empower individuals who are blind or visually impaired to embrace life to the fullest through evaluation, counseling, education, and training
